October – November 2024

Dedicated to the Year of the Family

The Kazan International Printmaking Triennial of Printed Graphics “Rider” 2024 is the successor to the Kazan International Printmaking Biennale “Rider”, which had been held since 2011. It is named after the creative art group “Rider”, whose activities in the 1920s turned Kazan into one of the centers for the development of graphic art in Russia.

The Kazan Triennial is organized to stimulate the interest of artists and viewers in printed types of graphics; promote the development of traditional engraving and the latest proprietary printing techniques (excluding digital printing); expand creative possibilities, promote the exchange of artistic and practical experience of artists from different cities, regions and countries, exhibiting modern works of printed graphics, conducting master classes by the leading artists.
